put little inlays over nail holes.*

Thus far today I have been installing little squares of inlay to cover the nail holes in the box sides. It's fun work, quite exacting but calm and easy. I'm enjoying myself. I finished the inlaying just after lunch and moved on to planing grooves in the two short sides — why I didn't think to do all the grooving before I docked pieces to length I do not know, and I will have more work to do because of it. It annoyed me a bit that I was that silly, hence my being in this computer lab. On the other hand, I am really satisfied with the inlays, so that's nice isn't it?
